NOTICE.

PUBLIC attention is drawn to the fact that at the time of the late war many brands of Condensed Milk are being offered for sale bearing labels so nearly representing that of the original 'EAGLE' Brand Milk manufactured solely by BORDEN'S CON-DENSED MILK CO. of NEW YORK, as are calculated to deceive the purchasers of the real article. As an additional protection all purchasers of Borden's 'EAGLE' Brand are requested to note that every tin of same bears the Signature of GALT BOD-DEN the original manufacturer on the label.
Borden's 'Eagle' Brand Milk has the envious reputation of being the Milk par excellence and without a rival in point of view of quality and purity.

Owing to Borden's special and exclusive process of manufacture both their 'EAGLE' and 'GOLD SEAL' Brands are specially recommended for use in tropical climates they being guaranteed to keep better than any other Condensed Milk offered to the public.

"MORE LIGHT."

Manifold Effects of Mr Willett's Scheme.

How widespread would be the effect on the community of the proposed Daylight Saving Bill was testified at a recent sitting of the House of Commons Committee which is considering the measure. According to witnesses examined, it would alter the railway time-tables, save gas bills, forward Mr Haldane's Army scheme, and arrest physical deterioration.

Sir Edward Sassoon presided over the Committee, and Mr Willett, the author of the scheme, said he had ascertained that 130 newspapers were in favour of it, 10 against, and 17 "critical."

Mr Gooday, general manager of the Great Eastern Railway Co., who was authorised to speak for the directors, while approving the objects of the proposals, affirmed that the manner in which Mr Willett proposed to carry them out was not practicable. He would rather see England adopt European time. The present scheme would lead to endless confusion, and speaking as a railway man, he felt it would lead to accidents. As far as his company was concerned, it would prove a matter of very great difficulty, as the bulk of their train service was in connection with the Continent.

ALTERATION OF TIME TABLES.

Replying to Mr Pearce, he admitted that it would effect some saving in artificial light, but he had not gone into the figures. Mr J. H. Vickery, assistant general manager of the London and South Western Railway Company, thought Mr Willett's scheme would prove of great public advantage. He could not say that the alteration would cause any great difficulty from a railway point of view. He, however, agreed with Mr Gooday as to the difficulty with regard to Continental traffic. It would entail an alteration in the time-tables, as there would have to be four columns on each page instead of one.

First and foremost among the advantages of the scheme, Mr Vickery put the saving of artificial light. "I have," he said, "come to the conclusion that the saving to the South Western Railway would be fully £4,000 a year."

The Chairman: If the alterations proposed by Mr Willett are not accepted. Would you be in favour of the adoption of Mid-European time—I most certainly would.

HELP FOR MR HALDANE.

Mr Somerville, a solicitor, of Doncaster, and a Colonel of a Yorkshire Territorial Regiment, said he considered that Mr Willett's scheme would be particularly advantageous to members of the Territorial Forces. It would help forward very considerably Mr Haldane's scheme.

The Chairman: Then you believe that this scheme would meet with the general approval of the members of the Territorial Forces?

Witness: I am sure it would as far as the officers are concerned. The men would not notice it.

The Chairman read a letter from the General Manager of the Midland Railway Company, who gave Mr Willett's scheme his heartiest approval. It was decided to invite the General Manager of the Midland Railway Company to give evidence.

Mr Basil Holmes, secretary of the Metropolitan Public Gardens Association, was entirely in favour of Mr Willett's proposals. They would be declared, enormously increase the value of open spaces to the public at large, and give greater scope for healthy recreation. The Association he represented gave the Bill its heartiest support. He also believed the proposals would have a great deal to do with checking physical deterioration.

Greater City Council has refused to support the Daylight Bill by a small majority. One of the members declared that it was "an interference with the Almighty," and another said it was "a design to improve the clock trade."

IN THE SAME CURRENCY.

"Mr Barnum," said Jenny Lind, one day during her American tour, over sixty years ago, "how do you account for the people being so eager to hear me sing?" "I guess it's because it's considered the fashionable thing to do," replied the famous showman, who was evidently in a bad temper about something; "and you know there is a good deal of truth in the saying that one fool makes many."

"I can quite believe that," retorted Jenny Lind, smiling as she glanced at Barnum's little children; "what a large family you've got!"

For the title of "champion woman runner of Australia," Mrs Newman of Victoria, who is the mother of six children, has issued a challenge offering to run any member of her sex in a 150 yards race.

Hector Fraser, a well-known pigeon shot, has died from tuberculosis at Monte Carlo.

HOW TO DO MORE BUSINESS. MANY AMERICANS have built up great commercial enterprises, by the use of Trade-News Items supplied by our CLIPPING BUREAU. Chinese merchants can do the same if they follow American methods. We clip business news from more than 50,000 papers monthly, and send these items to you while there is good prospect of supplying what is needed and doing business.

We can send you news and clippings on any line of business, or any subject, and you will be able to know, IN TRUTH, just what American business methods are like, and where there are openings for Chinese merchants. Suppose, for instance, you are a maker of Pottery: our Clipping Bureau might find in some paper an item saying that a big wholesale Pottery concern was being organized in a certain town—we, of course, would send you that business-news item, and give you a chance to do business with that firm. We can do just the same for any line of business, for there is always something being done on that line, and it might pay Chinese merchants to know. To avoid delay, send ten dollars (Mex.) for one month's trial order. Subsequent rates can be determined according to service. It won't cost any money to send for our free Book which tells all about our service and how much it costs. Send for it today.

AN INVISIBLE "GHOST."

Case for Psychical Research.

Most people who were informed of the existence in an old house of a ghost whose chief method of self-manifestation was an evil smell would at once suggest that the spectre might be laid as the result of an examination of the drains. This practical treatment would no doubt be advisable in the case of a malicious ghost whose doings are here related were it not that, in addition to signifying his presence by an odour like a charcoal-house, he from time to time half-suffocates the occupant of a certain room by the imposition over the unlucky individual's mouth of a "flabby, large, clammy hand." The story is vouched for by a correspondent, who has given our contemporary the names and addresses of those concerned. The house, which is "within 20 miles of Chung Kow," is, in fact, now frequented by the tenant as being haunted by one of the most gruesome ghosts that ever made flesh creep. Never visible, it always makes its presence known in the way described. The first member of the household to come into contact with the invisible visitant was the daughter of the house, a girl of 14, who first became conscious of the presence of someone standing by her bedside in the dark.

Another equally weird example of the habits of the ghost is given:—"Last Thursday, while the family were sitting at lunch, they were subjected to what has now become quite a familiar visitation. Steps were heard descending the stairs from the haunted bedroom, apparently those of a heavy man wearing loose slippers. They could see nothing, but heard the footsteps cross the floor, and presently there was a sound as if someone had sat down heavily in one of the chairs at the table. They heard the chair creak, but saw no one. To finish the meal was out of the question. The room smelt like a pest-house. All the windows were opened, but the odour filled the house."

The story in the village is that a former owner, an enormously corpulent man, died in the haunted chamber, where the body lay a long time before the necessary structural alterations for its removal could be made.

BUSHED AGAIN.

Having once been locked in a park all night, a certain tippler retains vivid recollections of the experience. One night he came out of a public-house on the South side of Edinburgh well loaded up, and as he crossed the road, the first thing he felt was the railing round St. Patrick Square garden. Round and round he went until he sank down exhausted, with the exclamation on his lips:—" Bless my soul, I'm locked in the park again."

The estate of the late Lord Overstone, owner of large chemical works at Dumbarton, near Glasgow, has been proved for probate purposes at £260,330 personally and £25,794 realty.

TRIED MANY THINGS WITHOUT BENEFIT UNTIL I TOOK CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE. Mr. P. R. Lewis, 46, Bridge Street, Rochester, writes:—"Just a line in favour of 'Clarke's Blood Mixture.' I had been for seven months, and tried many things without benefit, until I took your remedy. After the eighth bottle I was quite well again. Please accept this letter as token of gratitude to your wonderful 'Clarke's Blood Mixture.'—June 15, 1908." INQUIRIES in the States.—We have seen hosts of letters from all sorts and conditions of people, in which the writers acknowledge the benefit they have received from Clarke's Blood Mixture, which as a cure for skin and blood diseases, is the most successful remedy ever known. LIBERTY OF THE PRESS.

BETWEEN liberty and license there is a great gulf fixed. But that gulf is great only in the sense that it is deep. Its width is so insignificant that it is easily overstepped. It is thus with newspapers. To British papers is very wisely given a degree of freedom which we believe to be unequalled in any other monarchical country. That this freedom is sometimes abused is no proof that the policy of permitting the press to unrestrained comment upon public affairs is unwise. Rights, as well as privileges may be abused.
Taking it all in all a free press has had a very great deal to do with making our Empire what it is. It is then with something like wonder that we observe that our traditional policy has been departed from in regard to Mr.
E. T. Bethell, lately of the 'Korea Daily News.' We may say at once we do not identify ourselves with the policy for which Mr. Bethell was the leading exponent. That policy was persistent and unrelenting hostility to Japan. That is a policy we cannot endorse. Japan is entitled to precisely the same treatment as every other nation. Occidental or Oriental. She should be commended when her actions deserve censure and denounced when her behaviour calls for reproof. After a fairly close study of the 'Korea Daily News' since its inception, we are constrained to say that we have never detected any disposition to give her the dues she may fairly claim. But on the contrary we altogether decline to believe that Mr. Bethell has been sending forth a continuous flood of untruths purely for the purpose of damaging the reputation of Japan.

The motive is wanting. Despicable and unworthy actions are sometimes taken, or engineered, for no apparent motive.
But in such cases it is certain that some motive, which though insufficient and even non-understandable to the outside observer, is satisfactory and sufficient to the persons who occasion these actions.
What motive could Mr. Bethell possess to act in a manner contrary to the best traditions of British journalism?
Money? His paper suspended publication, not because of the impending action, but because of financial difficulties. That explanation is therefore impossible. Was Mr. Bethell looking for honours and dignities? Obviously if he had been he would have adopted the policy of praising Japan's every action. Honours bestowed by Japan, now regarded as one of the world's great Powers, would be more valuable than distinctions bestowed by a poor little 'protected' state such as Korea.
We feel then that we are justified in assuming that Mr. Bethell took up the attitude of antagonism to Japan because he conscientiously believed that she was behaving in Korea in a manner which common humanity demanded should be exposed. Holding this view he has published articles and news items of a character which brought upon him the ignominy of being 'bound over' like a wife-beater, and now, the crowning degradation of goal. With Mr. Bethell's articles, which were expressions of opinion, we have nothing to do. But the news items certainly showed that, at all events, some of the agents of Japan in Korea, were behaving towards the inhabitants of that country in a manner which called for denunciation. To cite one minor instance readers may recollect the historic Songdo Pagoda, which was 'acquired' under peculiar circumstances by no less a person than the special emissary of the Emperor of Japan. The pro-Japanese papers published in English in Japan flatly denied the 'acquisition' and one of them went so far as to characterise Mr. Bethell, who first reported the acquisition, as a 'liar.' In a few months that journal had to abandon its position. Mr. Bethell had been perfectly correct. Mr. Bethell, whatever errors of judgment he may have committed, has done a service to humanity in exposing the abuses of Japanese governance in Korea. The world was the more ready to believe in their authenticity by reason of undisputed facts in Manchuria. The door in Manchuria has not been opened.
Discrimination against foreigners has been the policy of the officials on the spot—though it must be said for Japan that the authorities at Tokyo repudiated such action. But diplomatic repudiation does not open a door which has been carefully and designedly closed. It was the Hainan Island-Fukumen railway difficulty which first caused the slow thinking British people to wonder whether the Ally was really 'playing the game' according to the rules. To vote a contract given to a British firm on grounds which insult the intelligence was to give to the British people throughout the world an unexpected shock. We would ask readers, and our local Japanese friends—of whom we are glad to say we have many—to recall that we have hitherto reserved judgment on this particular action of Japan. Yesterday, however, we were enabled to publish Japan's defence of her action.
Since perusing this we feel compelled to say that if there is not an extraordinary outburst of indignation in the British press we are willing to forego any reputation we may possess as observers of events and judges of their results. It was hoped by those well disposed towards Japan, among whom we class ourselves, that she would be able to supply some defence sufficiently specious to render its acceptance by Great Britain possible. That hope has now been dispelled. Reverting to Mr.

Bethell we feel English-speaking people all over the world will experience a spasm of disgust at the easy compliance of Great Britain with the extraordinary demand of Japan that she should punish a British journalist for criticising the foreign policy of Japan. Mr. Bethell has not been half so bitter against Japan as have been many Indian Editors, who have been many times against Japan.
Yet he is sent to goal! We feel sure that this incident will do more to damage the present British Government, and incidentally damage to render impossible any renewal of the alliance, than even the Fokien railway question. Time will show if our judgement is sound.

We observe that fears are expressed concerning the future of the rice crop, which is said to have suffered severely in consequence of the superabundant rainfall in parts of the Kwangtung delta.
In Taing Un, one of the most extensive districts of the province, the water has risen more than ten feet above its normal level, thus overflowing the embankments, which, in this part of the country, are specially constructed of a width and height to protect from flood the land contiguous to the river. Here from time to time disastrous floods have occurred, the dykes proving inadequate to withstand the pressure of the current augmented as it has been from the two main watersheds in the north of the province. This year, although no such disaster as the bursting of river banks has taken place, it is stated that an extensive area is submerged by the overflow, the dykes being in parts completely covered by water. It is further told that the town of Fatsien is under flood, many of its streets being for the time impassable for foot passengers. They are in fact turned into water courses navigable for small boats, which ply there for hire. For a time therefore until the waters abate, this well-known commercial and industrial centre is transformed into a Venice in China.
Throughout Fatsien, itself, and in the region adjacent, the pedestrian is likely now to meet with considerable difficulty in traversing public thoroughfares, highways as well as byways being to a considerable extent under water.
The outlook for the farmer and the poorer population generally is becoming sufficiently serious. The consequences of a poor rice harvest in the southern and central parts of Kwangtung are felt in a variety of ways that are not always obvious at the time when disturbing causes such as floods and drought are most in operation. In bad years public order is largely affected, robber bands are recruited from the ranks of the suffering peasantry, and the task of ruling, no easy one at ordinary times and under normal conditions in this part of China, becomes one of special difficulty.

CLOCKWORK FIGURES.

HONGKONG, June, 1908.

Dear Man,—Did you ever see an Opera called 'The Mountebanks' written by Mr. W. S. Gilbert? If so you will remember a verse which runs—

'Clockwork figures may be found Everywhere and all around; Ten to one if we but know You are clockwork figures too.'

I have lately been forcibly reminded of the element of truth in these profound verses,—reminded of our terrible tendency to grow automatic, so that our very ideas, in time become stereotyped, our conversations clichés.
Surely clockwork figures could say 'How do you do?' with the cordiality of most human beings, and interchange replies about the weather, and the probable occurrence of a typhoon with equal intelligence.

One evening not very long ago, I was travelling down in the Peak tram.
As we stopped at the Bowen Road Station a woman I knew well got in.
'How do you do?' I said.

'Quite well, thank you,' replied she.
'And how is your husband?' I continued.

'Quite well, thank you,' was her answer.

'Why did you not bring him with you to-night?' (we were both on our way to dine at the house of a mutual friend).

'Oh! poor dear, he has been in bed for quite a week, ill with an attack of malarial fever.'

And my interlocutor cannot yet imagine why I was so heartless as to smile.

At dinner that evening I sat at table between an elderly man of Colonial importance and a youth to whom nature had been particularly kind in the matter of personal beauty.

'And what have you been doing with yourself to-day,' the former asked me. He always puts that same question indiscriminately to every woman he meets in a kind, fatherly, sort of way.

'Playing golf with you if you will remember,' I answered.

'By Jove yes, how stupid I am,' he said laughing quite pleasantly at finding himself caught out.

'Ten to one if we only knew You are a clockwork figure too.'

I said patiently, and then I turned to hear what original remarks the neighbour on my left had to offer.

'Beastly weather we're having,' he began brightly, and not at all as if it had affected him in any way.

The remark did not seem like the opening of a really elevating conversation, so I merely acquiesced.

'Haven't been able to see the Peak to-day,' he continued.

'No,' I granted.

'And I don't suppose we shall see it for another month or so now,' and with that the youth turned to his other neighbour and made those same three remarks all over again, for I am not ashamed to confess that I had the curiosity to listen.

Then I touched him on the arm. 'I want to tell you a little story,' I said.

'Once upon a time two ladies who had not seen each other for many years met again in the street.

'So delighted to see you again,' remarked one. 'Why you are scarcely altered at all.'

'So glad,' answered the other, and how little changed you are? Why how long is it since we met?'

'About ten years if not longer,' said the first one.

'And why have you never looked me up—you surely knew where I was living?'

'My dear, just look at the weather we have had,' rejoined the other.

'Ha, Ha, laughed my youthful neighbour, 'that's a jolly good story.'

But I do not think he saw the point as applied to himself.

It is not only in little trivial ways that we grow mechanical. Religion becomes formula, art a pretence. The Society man or woman is an automaton.
The popular novelist perpetually reproduces the same types; the successful business man becomes a mere money grinding machine. Even history repeats itself.

A Notice how, when we have time, we go on the Sabbath to St. John's Cathedral, and mechanically confess ourselves to be 'miserable sinners.' No clockwork figures wound up to repeat that confession could say the words with the comprehension of their meaning.

than most of us do. For it stands to reason that if we realised our condition to be miserable, we should try and alter it, and if we did not believe it to be so, we should not sing aloud of our misery and cry for mercy.

And do think just for a moment of the lies we tell—of the insincerities we perpetrate in the same machine-like manner.

'Must you go? Well! I am so delighted to have seen you,' murmurs a hostess to her departing guests as she bids them adieu.

Then sinking into a chair with an air of relief the machinery gives way and she becomes human again.

'I thought those people were never going. John, and I am so tired,' she sighs to her husband. 'Oh! dear, what a nuisance entertaining is.'

The guests well wound up before saying farewell, each protest—'We have enjoyed ourselves immensely.
Thank you so much; so good of you to have invited us.'

Once outside and the doors closed behind them these clockwork figures also are transformed.

'I was thankful to come away were not you?' says one to another. 'I cannot think why we ever accepted the invitation.'

Everywhere and all around—Clockwork figures!

LOCAL INDUSTRY.

The Governor Visits Quarry Bay.

Through the courtesy of Mr. D. R. Law, His Excellency and Staff visited Messrs.
Butterfield and Swire's Sugar Refinery and the Shipyard at Quarry Bay, on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Murray Scott, the Manager, and Mr.
Headland kindly showed the party over the Refinery, and Mr. Forster Nicholson, Mr.
Griffin and Mr. Clarke conducted them round the Shipyard and Docks. Tea was then served after which the party returned to Hongkong in one of the First's launches which was kindly placed at their disposal.

To a stranger Singapore must be a wild place to live in for they are always shooting visions of the wild in the heart of the town. The latest is the discovery of a wild boar in Tank Road not a mile from Commercial Square.

The leading shipping lines have issued a notice to shippers stating that on and after July 1 next bills of lading on which freight is prepayable will not be surrendered until the freight has been paid, also that bills of lading will not be countersigned on delivery orders granted for cargo on which freight has to be collected here until the amount due has been paid.

After serving three years on the committee of the Chinese dispensaries, which were commenced to educate the Chinese in laws of sanitation, Mr. Lau Chiu Pak has resigned owing to pressure of other calls upon his time.
